

Summary

Entrepreneurial geek with roots in the open source movement. Passionately enabling software-related teams to deliver. Creates/structures/improves processes. Architects and helps to implement future-proof solutions. Coaches both individuals and groups.

At the age of seven (1989) Cies wrote his first lines of code in a LOGO-like language on an MSX (pre-PC). Two years later he attended a conference on an emerging new technology, the Internet, at the Erasmus University from which he would graduate 16 years later (2000) with a degree in Business Computer Science.

After being introduced to the open source movement in 1997, he taught himself a variety of skills including system administration and programming (Bash, Python, Ruby & C++). By 2002 he got his pet project KTurtle—a zero-entry-barrier programming environment— included in KDE's edu module, and thereby in almost every Linux distribution.

Extensively travelled Europe and Asia after graduating. On return his professional life became a mix of hands-on work in startups and web software agencies, while settling as a husband and father in personal life.
